

My grandma came to this country because she figured life would be easier. She was single and had five kids. She would go to TJ (Tijuana) and then cross the border illegally, along with my mother and her four brothers and sisters. They soon decided to stay and became U.S. citizens.

Anonymous, California